LIFETIME ALLOWANCE: DECLARATION FORM

NOTES TO HELP YOU WHEN COMPLETING THIS DECLARATION

You must provide a complete and accurate response to this declaration. If you make a false statement or representation whether fraudulently or negligently, you may become liable to a penalty from HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC).

The test against the Standard Lifetime Allowance which for the tax year 2006/07 is £1.6m is to work out if you have to pay any tax to HMRC before receiving your pension benefit. This test applies to the total value of all the benefits you, as an individual, may have from all your pension arrangements. This includes all those pensions you are already receiving and any you are starting now. This does not include the following:

- State pension benefits; or
- Any dependant's or civil partner's pension you may be receiving; or
- Any benefits due to start after this pension.

As a quick rule of thumb if you can say that the value of all your benefits is less than £1,000,000 or putting it another way, your combined annual pension after taking tax-free cash is less than £40,000, then you should be able to just sign the form without any more detailed work but it is your responsibility to check. If you want to know how to value your different types of benefit, please look at the table in the next section.

How do you work out the value of your benefits for the test?

Type of Benefit	How to value
Money Purchase arrangement	Fund value only
Pensions already in payment before 6 April 2006	Multiply the gross annual pension by 25
Income drawdown already in payment before 6 April 2006	Multiply the maximum annual income by 20
Benefits that start on or after 6 April 2006
– Tax-free lump sum (if chosen)	The amount of cash
– From defined benefit pension arrangement	Multiply the gross annual pension by 20
– From a pension bought from an insurance company	The purchase price of the annuity

Gross means before any tax has been taken off it.

Defined benefit pension means one where your final benefits are not dependent on the fund value but on a set formula. This is also commonly referred to as a Final Salary scheme.

Money Purchase means where your final benefits are dependent on the fund value and annuity rates at your retirement date.

Here is an example to help you work out the value of your benefits:

Gross annual pension in payment that started before 6 April 2006:	£ 5,000 (current value)
Tax-free lump sum:	£25,000
Purchase price of a pension bought from an insurance company:	£75,000

The value of these benefits is: (£5,000 X 25) + £25,000 + £75,000 = £225,000.

If you want to do a more detailed analysis of your benefits just to make sure that you are under the Lifetime Allowance, there is more information and some worked examples on our website www.windsor-life.com.

SECTION 1 – PERSONAL DETAILS

Please check that the details are correct in this section. If not, or not completed, please complete this section and initial any changes or entries.

SECTION 2 – DECLARATION

This declaration section is important. Please make sure that you read it and the notes on the following:

- Enhanced and Primary protection;
- Lifetime Allowance enhancement factor; and
- Reduced Standard Lifetime Allowance (SLA)

before you sign in section 3.

ENHANCED AND PRIMARY PROTECTION

Enhanced and Primary protection allows you to protect the total value of your pension policies across all registered pension schemes that you have accrued up to 5 April 2006.

If you have not registered for, or are not going to register for, Primary and/or Enhanced protection you can declare that you comply with Declaration 2.

LIFETIME ALLOWANCE ENHANCEMENT FACTOR

There are circumstances where your lifetime allowance may be more than the SLA. This increase comes from a number of defined factors that are called Lifetime Allowance enhancement factors.

If you have not registered for, or are not going to register for, a Lifetime Allowance enhancement factor you can declare that you comply with Declaration 3.

For more information on what Enhanced and Primary protection or Lifetime Allowance enhancement factor mean please refer to Taking your pension from within the Customer Services section on our website www.windsor-life.com.

REDUCED SLA

There are circumstances where your SLA might be reduced. This will generally occur if you have an unqualified right to take benefits before age 50 (rising to age 55 in 2010).

If you do not have a right to take benefits before age 50 (rising to age 55 in 2010) you can declare that you comply with Declaration 4.

Notes for FORM D

If the value of your pension benefits is over £1,000,000 or putting it another way, your combined annual pension after taking tax-free cash is more than £40,000, or if you are going to do any or all of the following:

- Register for either Enhanced or Primary protection;
- Register for a Lifetime Allowance enhancement factor; or
- Take your benefits before age 50 (rising to age 55 in 2010)

Please ask us for Form D1 - Lifetime Allowance detailed questionnaire. You will need to complete it.
